Abstract
The typical phases of a system architect development are described, beginning at the fundamental technology knowledge, with a later broadening in technology and in business aspects. Finally the subtlety of individual human beings is taken into account.
Typical Growth of a System Architect

- Root technical knowledge
- Generalist technical knowledge
- Business, application insight
- Process insight
- Psychosocial skills
Generalists and Specialists are Complementary

The Awakening of a System Architect

Gerrit Muller

version: 1.1
March 6, 2013
MATcomplementaryExpertises
Spectrum from Specialist to System Architect

The Awakening of a System Architect

5 Gerrit Muller